The Shivering Victims Of fever and ague, who freeze to-day to burn o-morrow, might have been exempt from their present trials had they availed themselves in time of that safeguard against all malarious diseases, Hostetter's stomach bitters. But if it is too late for prevention, it is not too late for cure. A single bottle of this rresistible herbal tonic will stop the parox-ssms, and a brief course of it will restore the patient to vigorous health. The prudent and thoughtful, however, who would rather forestall disease than wait for its assaults, will resort to this sure defence against intermittent and remittent fevers at the commence ment of the season when they prevail. Now is the time to forearm the system against fever and ague, bilious complaints and dys--diseases which are often engendered, and always aggravated, by the chills and damps of winter and early spring.

The Southern Railway Bridge Trestle at Cincinnati Carried Away-Destruction of Coal Boats, Etc.

In the Mississippi. St. Louis, December 13.—The steam Centennial, involved in yesterday's crash by the ice, sunk about four o clock this morning. Aside from this, no notable change has taken place since last night; all the boats previously mentioned are still wedged tightly together and when the ice-gorges break away most of them will go down with it, and either be wholly wrecked or damaged still more than they are now. The Centennial was a very large freight-carrier—two thousand tons burden-and is said to have cost one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars, instead of forty thousand, as reported last night. Since the polar wave swept down upon us Friday night last the Ohio river has been filled with floating ice. Although the ice was $18. not very heavy, the river was low, and gorges were formed easily. At such times the nerves of our river and coal men, especially the latter, are strained to their greatest tension. It was doubly so on the present occasion from the fact that the main channel of the river was obstructed by the false trestle-work the erection of the Southern railroad bridge at the foot of Horne : treet. Since the ice has been running, gorges at the Southern railroad bridge has been frequent, as the ice had but a narrow channel on the Ohio side to pass through. No damage occurred until about noon yesterday, when a gorge formed more formidable than any previous which extended up to above foot of Plum street. The tug Rescue has succeeded in cut-ting her way through the gorge from above to a point abreast the imprisoned steamers, and is now attempting to break up the ice along the outer side of them, so that those that can be removed from their present perilous positions can be taken to open water along the shore below. Further out there is an immense tealed, extending north nearly to the city wharf and south beyond the reach of the eye. This was the situation at eight o'clock to-night, and as the weather is considerably colder, the prospect is that there will be no further movement of the loc to-night.

Shortly before noon, Joseph Edington, a son of Mr John M. The boys were oblivious of any danger and did not realize that they incurred any, until Joseph Edgington, in attempting to pass be-tween the fire and the edge of the bluff, slipped and fell down a sheef descent of fifty feet, striking the frozen ground and rebounding and sliding down the precipitous cliff one hundred and fifty feet below. > A careful survey this afternoon of affairs at the scene of the steamboat disaster at the arsenal shows that some of the steamers clasped in the ice gorge there are not in so bad a condition as they were last night, and that others are not so badly damaged as previously reported. The water rose considerably during last night and to-day, which relieved the pressure somewhat. The Lake Superior is afloat, and with the exception of a trifling lask is in good condition. The Savannah, lying first below the Lake Superior is afloat, but she is leaking badly, and is kept from sinking only by constant use of the pumps. The curpenters are endeavoring to stop the leak. The War Eagle is also afloat, but she has a hole in her bottom, and her after-guards and upper works are gone. She has steam up, and all her pumps are in operation. Her furniture and table ware nave been taken ashore, and her mate, who has a large gang of men working on her, says he can save her. The Alex Mitchell is in a precarious condition, being apparently held up by the lee on one side and the wreck of the Bayard on the other, and when the lee goes out she is expected to sink. Some hopes are expressed now that the Centennial can be ruised. The Andr Johnson is badly hemmed in between the Centennial and Davenport, but is not leaking, and for the present, at least, is safe. The Davenport is sunk to the boller deck, and is a total loss. The Red Wing, Minneapolis, Rob Roy and Northwestern are safely moored below the gorge; the latter has steam up and ready to render any asistance possible when the tee creaks up. The rise of the water floated the Golden Eagle, and with the aid of the Northwestern, she is now lifty or sixty yards below the jam. She has steam up, and if she is not further damaged by the next movement of the lee, two or three hundred dollars will repair her. The Rob Roy also has steam up, and is prepared to meet any coming emergency. The tag Rescue has succeeded in cut-
